Dear FCC Commissioners,
Although FM and AM radio stations in the U.S. are absolutely thriving businesses, there seems to be no limit to the greed of their fewer and fewer owners. That satellite radio is still on an uphill road to maybe eventually becoming a thriving business has been no obstacle for the NAB to invent reasons why the growth of satellite radio should be choked off by all means. Please don't allow the NAB to control what I can listen to in my car or home, e.g., the traffic and weather news. Remind them that terrestrial radio (and its listeners) would be better served by engaging in innovative competition in their programming rather than in wasteful litigation. I imagine that the NAB did not appreciate the introduction of 8-track tapes into cars either!

In my cars or home I listen to terrestrial radio, XM Satellite Radio, or Sirius Satellite Radio. I enjoy them all and definitely would not want my choice restricted by any group lobbying to increase their own share of the pie at the expense of any other.

Sincerely,

wolf vogel
